

They are basically identical and share the same properties.

While both follow the same proportional property, the algorithm is not exactly $f(x) = x$, it follows something more approximate to $f(x) = (3/4)x$. Although a more precise fraction would be $f(x) = 0.711 \cdot x$